Paradise, Mauro Bendinelli, Herman Friedman, 1996-05-31 As we approach the end of this millennium enteric diseases remain important public health problems In many parts of the world sanitary measures have advanced little over the last century although some of the governments in those areas are striving to improve facilities for sanitation and to educate their people in proper handling of food water sewage and other modes of transmission of pathogenic microbes Even in highly developed countries outbreaks of diarrheal diseases occur today Globally the annual morbidity from enteric infections is estimated at several billion and deaths at several million per year In this volume descriptions of some of these diseases of immunity that results from them of clinical studies that promote understanding of individual and community immunity of molecular factors of pathogenesis and or of advances in vaccine development have been provided by leading researchers At present the application of molecular methods is enhancing the identification of protective antigens of many microorganisms In addition new methods for design and delivery of vaccines are being devised Perhaps then more effective tools for reducing at least some of these diseases will be available within the next decade Lois J Paradise Herman Friedman Mauro Bendinelli vii Contents Introduction xv LOIS J PARADISE 1 Indigenous Microorganisms as a Host Defense 1 KENNETH H WILSON 1 Introduction 1 2 Composition of Intestinal Biota 2 3 Molecular Approaches to Determine Composition of the Biota 3 4 Role of the Host in Determining the Composition of the Biota Probiotic Bacteria and Enteric Infections J.J. Immunology of Human Infection André J. Nahmias, Richard J. O'Reilly, 2013-11-09 When we were first approached by the senior editors of this series to edit a book on interactions between the host and infectious agents we accepted this offer as an exciting challenge The only condition readily agreed upon was that such a book should focus on the immunology of infections in humans Our reasons if not biases were severalfold We sensed that the fields of microbiology and immunology which had diverged as each was focusing on its individual search were coming together In agreement with the opinions expressed by Dr Richard Krause in the Introduction we strongly believed that the development of the immune system evolved in response to infectious agents and that the evolution of these agents was influenced in turn by the character of the host's responses An intensive examination of the multitude of primitive or more recently developed host defense mechanisms to determine their relative contribution to man's resistance to a given infectious agent appeared to us to be of crucial basic and practical interest Many immune mechanisms studied in animals were being explored in humans and it appeared timely to focus particularly on what was known about man's resistance to infectious agents correlating this information with lessons learned from relevant experiments in animal models      Neonatal Enteric Infections Caused by Escherichia Coli Bud Tennant,1971
